PRINCE CONSORT'S WOES

WILHELMINA'S HUSBAND MAKES COMPLAINT OF HIS MISERIES.

Dislike of the People and Court Is Apparent—Stories of Domestic Quarrels Are Declared True.

Milwaukee Free Press.

Prince Henry, husband of the Queen of Holland, has written a long letter complaining of the miseries of his position as prince consort to an old friend, a lieutenant in the chancellery of the Kaiser's bodyguard, of which Prince Henry was lately an officer.
Among other things the prince says:

"The profession of prince consort is burdened with disagreeable features of which the outside world has no conception. To tell you the truth, I found my position very awkward from the start. Our marriage service says very impressively, 'He shall be thy lord, for a prince consort to be is a very difficult matter, particularly in a palace, government and public regards you with suspicion, fearing that you may obtain too much influence or meddle with affairs of state. If I go hunting I am accused of leaving my wife alone and making her ill by my long absences. If I invite a few friends from everywhere, I am suspected of being a people's court with his foreign cravings.' Debts? Some papers say Wilhelmina paid millions for me, others that she refused to pay; still others that she bought me a farm worth 1,000,000 of florins in Dobbin. They are all lies.

"At first I expected something different from this. I do not expect a prince consort, for I always understood that Eden was wiped out after that affair of the apple. Still, it is not altogether bad. I have impressive surroundings and plenty of outward show. It is 'your royal highness' here and 'your royal highness' there, but official flattery notwithstanding I cannot regard myself otherwise than as a piece of scenery to be shifted at the stage manager's pleasure. Besides, I am not at all permitted to do as I please. 'Make a show of yourself, hold your tongue and find a place where you are in nobody's way' is the rule I have to obey. To be plain, I do not lead a most luxurious life.

"To start with myself to be extremely complimentary. I pronounced everything very interesting, even though at times times things seemed a little stupid—as stupid as our dinners and smokers at the officers' mess, for instance, and you know that I am not a man of raw meat for dinner and red cabbage every third day. There are, as I said, some good features. The best feature that money is not so scarce as it used to be. In fact, I have plenty of it.

"These Dutch ladies are very amiable expressions, and then they always say, 'When we have a successor to the throne we shall be shifted at the stage manager's pleasure. The boy would be a great burden to the crown, and he is of infinitely more consequence than I am.' I am a little more than a subject—a complicated subject of the gentlemen of the service that I should pay a little more attention to me.
There being no heir, I go hunting. Germanism, they say again, although the queen herself is a German. I feel that Holland is in order to serve the king of his illness. And then—the Dutch cuisine engages me.

"Be assured, my dear count, those absurd stories of an open quarrel, of beating and duels, are all rot, inventions of the cowardly canaille press. There wasn't a word of truth in either of the stories.
That whenever they have said anything against me, my hands are tied; the law will not help me. It will not punish my detractors. No state attorney in all Holland would raise his finger in my defense.
Therefore, get a thick skin, Henry, consider that you are a piece of scenery. I cannot pick up a paper without finding about me. And the countess, who is the wife of the prince, is now considered as a piece of scenery. I would like to know where and when, and in what circumstances, she was so treated. I can say that I proved a dissolute man. Besides, letters from home tell me that every prince who ever was a prince here like mine father as I do. My friends here tell me things will run smooth after a while. After all, I have to look pleasant and act graciously from early morning till night.

"Reading is not one of my passions—I hate old themes, but I had to find out royal consorts ended in other countries and under similar circumstances. I read of Francis of Lorraine, 1598 to 1765. He was married to the Empress Maria Theresa for twenty-nine years. They had sixteen children. You can't ask for more—and he was a stadholder general of the Netherlands. His wife found time to rule the Roman empire of German nationality, and his wife had nothing to do with that. At him a very respectable fortune. Another queen, Albert of Coburg, who married the queen of England, kept him, the books are more explicit. He was a good-

THE LIVE STOCK MARKETS

CATTLE IN LIGHT SUPPLY AND SEL-LING AT STEADY PRICES.

Hogs Active but Without Important Change—Sheep Quiet and Steady—Condition of Other Markets.

UNITED STOCKYARDS, INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 22.—Cattle—Receipts, 175; shipments, 20. The marketing of cattle this week has been of only fair volume, the total showing a decrease of 1,000 compared with last week, but an increase of nearly 300 over the same week a year ago and over 1,000 compared with the corresponding week two years ago. The receipts thus far this year are 5,500 larger than the same period last year. The week opened with a good inquiry for the female butcher grades, and the market for that class was active at fully steady prices. The scarcity of cars for transporting beef, however, caused a very slow demand for the export steers, and buyers would not bid the market value of the offerings, consequently there were few sales concluded. Later in the morning, with a better outlet there was a more satisfactory turn in the business, and with continued small supplies the market gained strength and at the extreme close of the week all fat steers were selling at least 25c higher than the close of last week. There was also a continued good demand for female cattle, and with just about enough to meet the requirements of the trade competition was strong and there was a gain of about 10c to 15c in prices during the week. There was very little or no change in the market for feeding cattle, the good kinds selling promptly, while others moved slowly. Late in the week there was quite an active demand for all kinds of cattle and the best prices were realized. Extreme sales reported during the week were $4.50 for native steers, $3.50 for Texans, $2.50 for calves, $4.00 for bulls and $5.00 for calves. The receipts to-day were small, but show an increase over a week ago and a decrease of over one hundred compared with last year. There was not a great variety of stock, and a range in price for all kinds was not established, but dealers quoted the market steady compared with yesterday. Quota-
